

not just software ... car hire experts

XML has become the accepted format for the transfer of data between "unconnected" systems.

Most brokers use this method to "get" rate and availability data from car rental companies and to return reservations.

Despite the fact that the transmission protocol (XML) is in widespread use, the challenge then becomes one of agreeing message formats.

Thermeon have already done a lot of the hard work for you with XML formats agreed and are live with a number of the brokers you are likely to use.
